

CONNECTICUT GREEN & HEALTHY HOMES PROJECT

Convening Update

Event Highlights

- Leaders of seven Connecticut State Agencies shared their vision and commitment to housing quality and energy efficiency as platforms for health, achievement and success for Connecticut residents.
- Representatives of two energy, housing and health programs—United Illuminating’s EnergizeCT Home Energy Solutions and Healthy Homes Pilot, and Connecticut Children’s Medical Center Healthy Homes Program—shared lessons learned from their innovative work.
- The Green & Healthy Homes Initiative President & CEO shared innovations in housing, health and energy policy and sustainable funding.
- Participants shared insights and feedback from their work via comments and written feedback—including challenges and ideas for expanding partnerships.

Commissioner Pino, Dept. of Public Health, and Bryan Garcia, President and CEO, Connecticut Green Bank

“The event was very informative. Speakers provided great ideas regarding how to achieve results in partnership with state and local entities.”

-Convening Participant

Marcus Smith, Connecticut Children’s Medical Center Healthy Homes Program, Pat McDonnell, United Illuminating, Kerry O’Neill, Connecticut Green Bank

Next Steps

- Complete Connecticut Green & Healthy Homes Project feasibility research, including interviews with stakeholders across the State, and analysis of potential return on investment for health, housing and energy services.
- Schedule virtual and in-person opportunities to continue the conversation about working at the intersection of Connecticut’s housing, health and energy.
- Convene philanthropic partners to advance sustainable support for housing, health and energy in Connecticut.

From left to right: Deputy Commissioner Muniz, Dept. of Children and Families, Commissioner Wilkinson, Office of Early Childhood, Commissioner Ritter, Dept. on Aging, Commissioner Bremby, Dept. of Social Services, Commissioner Klein, Dept. of Housing, Commissioner Klee, Dept. of Energy and Environmental Protection, and Judith Dicine, Office of the Chief State’s Attorney